ient. Smith and Three Troopers and 11 Rioters Are More Or Less Injured.

hat the Mine Was to Resume This Morning; 47 Arrested and Jailed; Sheriff Declares Order Must Be Preserved; Denbo Demonstration.

By far the most serious disorder occurring in the region since the strike gan took place at Tower Hill No. 1 rly this morning when a mob of men id women, estimated at between 500 id 600 v ciously assaulted a detail of ven state police and battled with em for 15 or 20 minutes, during hich 15 persons including four po e were injured.

An unconfirmed rumor had been culated last evening that an attempt would be made this morning to sume operations at the mine. As a sult the population of the mining wn assembled and marched in a dy to the shaft shortly before 5:30 clock. Finding the police on duty, t no civilians on their way to work, cept foremen, pumpers and diggers boiler coal, the mob attacked the icers, using revolvers, clubs, pickndles and hurling bricks and stones them. Dozens of shots were fired members of the mob and for 15 inutes or more the officers had to ht for their lives, so bitter was the tack and so overwhelming the numr of their assailants.

Lieutenant Thomas Smith, in comand of the detail, was struck over d below the right eye with a brick using a wound which required seven itches to close. About the same ne one of the rioters dealt the offer's pistol holster a blow with a lub and with such force as to break ne of the parts of the weapon. The utenant later drew his weapon and tempted it several times in an effort defend himself but it failed to discharge, to which fact is no doubt due e absence of fatalities resulting om the assaults on the officers. Lieutnant Smith was removed to the Townsville General Hospital for eatment.

Corporal Earl C. Kaufman was shot the left knee and badly beaten over e head and shoulders with clubs.

Private Harry Gable suffered a disation of his shoulder and other injries.

The other four officers escaped with s serious injuries but all suffered the hands of the mob.

Tony Rotst, one of the rioters, came it with a compound fracture of the ght arm, a bullet wound in the head d one in the arm and a deep scalp ceration. He was removed to the ainontown Hospital. Five other riots, none of whom was seriously rt, were given attention at Tower ill. Half a dozen received slight juries not requiring the attention doctors.

Within 40 minutes after the attack s started 40 state police, stationed other points were on the scene. ey arrested 47 participants in the ot and took them to Uniontown ere they were committed to jail.

One result of the disorder this orning will be the prompt increase the force of state police on duty in e region. Sheriff I. I. Shaw announced this morning that the law ll be enforced to the letter and or preserved. A proclamation may issued prohibiting the assembly of lking miners anywhere in the unty.

About the time the riot was taking ce at Tower Hill No. 1 a group of foreign-born women made a demstration at Denbo, a short distance ove Brownsville on the Washington unty side of the Monongahela river, th a view to preventing the miners going to work. The women re dispersed by the mine guards thout any trouble developing.

The rumor that a woman was taken the Uniontown hospital as the reit of having been struck over the ad by a mine official at Lambert, d that he had been arrested and led, is declared in Uniontown to be founded.

While it is said by some that the buds have been killed in the vicinity of Connellsville it is said by others that in many places, to a large extent, though not all, the fruit will escape. It appears that cherries and peaches blossoms have been killed. A Scottdale township farmer who was in town Friday brought a similar report from his section.

Ice formed again Friday night and there was a very heavy frost.

OPERETTA ABLY PRESENTED BY HIGH STUDENTS

"Swords and Scissors" One of Most Difficult Yet Attempted.

TO BE REPEATED TONIGHT

One of the most difficult operettas ever undertaken by high school students was successfully produced last evening when "Swords and Scissors," or "Napoleon Caught Napping" was presented. The cast was made up from students of all departments of the high school, directed by Carl T. Anselme, music supervisor. Miss Frances Nanna and J. H. Lehr of the English department had charge of the dramatic parts.

The play dated back to April, 1805, and depicted the life of Napoleon's court centering about the need of Empress Josephine and her court ladies for new gowns for a ball to be given. The play was well executed by the principals and the big audience was surprised at the ability of the youthful players to carry their difficult roles, practically all of which were in song.

Some delightful quiet, witty and humorous numbers were excellently rendered in the choruses for the young soldiers held their own.

Cora Charlesworth appeared in the role of Empress Josephine and Paul Scribner played a Napoleon. Emma Wetherholt was Mlle Rose de Vidal, maid of honor, and confidante of the Empress and Mildred Seaman, Alice Mayne, Elizabeth Stevens, Gladys Albright and Jennie Belle Hoey were court ladies. Alfred Williamson was Fouche, the chief of police, and Albert Lee, tenor, was Colonel Lepine of the 10th Hussars. Robert Thomas Piper played Moreau, a great tailor and Brown Herbert and William Dumas appeared as his assistants. Paul Behmer cut a lot of funny antics as Pierre, a detective. He had as assistant Mary Eichele, Robert Beshanis, Clifford Crowe, Kenneth Cunningham and Charles Zimmerman.

Harold Smith was General Nansouty of the Imperial Guard and Theodore Thorasko was Sergeant Moustache, of the 10th Hussars.

Miss Virginia Christy, student director, was praised.

The committee in charge of the production was composed of Robert Piper and Robert Smith, Edward Wade, Joe Swink, Jack Beechem, Herbert Kay, Louis Bailey, Gilbert Jones, Richard Dixon, John Boyle, Samuel Kelly and Dan Hudson.

In the girls' chorus the following took part: Margaret Butterworth, Alice Smith, Marie DeLuca, Doris Imbert, Margaret Shinale, Edna Blackstone, Thelma Carpenter, Pearl Beck, Edith Cox, Gladys Kooser, Florence Gross, Margaret Gordon, Thelma Arthur, Tessa Perella, Mary Jo Lindley, Lois Cable, Irene Will, Charlotte Dean, Emily Lehner, Maude Tipton, Quin Helen Evans, Mary Elizabeth Seitz, Jean McClelland, Mary Frazee, Rachel Rodwick Smith, Esther Melnick, Margaret Bolinger, Elizabeth Herrick, Edith Hoffman, Marie Bufano, Edna Charlesworth, Edith Forrest, Evelyn Cupp, Gertrude Marhuta, Beatrice Horewitz, Edith Cohen, Grace Smith, Adele Wilson, Rose Albright and Louise Morris.

Courier Newsboy at Mill Run Given Award by Carnegie Hero Commission For Daring Rescue Drowning Woman

Among the awards of the Carnegie Hero Commission announced Friday night in Pittsburg, was one to John E. Laughrey, 14 years old, of Mill Run, newsboy at that place for The Courier, for heroic action in rescuing Miss Bertha C. McCormick, 37 years old, of Pittsburg, from drowning in Indian creek July 26, 1921.

Miss McCormick and a number of others were bathing in a pool in Indian creek near the reservoir of the Mountain Water Supply Company, when Miss McCormick got beyond her depth. She became frightened and was sinking when the boy, who is small, leaped into the pool and made his way to her. She grasped his hair and they both went down, according to the facts developed by the commission. He freed himself, caught hold of her and pulled her seven feet to a bridge pier where she got an insecure hold. The boy continued to swim and support her until another boy came to their assistance and together they got her to shallow water.

John is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Laughrey of Mill Run. The family formerly lived in Connellsville.

It was said at the time that Miss McCormick personally rewarded the boy for saving her life.

Miss McCormick was spending the summer with Miss Eliza Bonham.

Included in the list of awards is the name of Thomas A. O'Brien of Latrobe, who saved a girl and tried to save another from drowning at Darlington.

Sheriff and Two Deputies Slain by Section Workers

By Associated Press.

DEARDSTOWN, Ill., April 29. One of the worst floods in its history into the greatest shooting affray this vicinity ever has experienced, the city of Beardstown and the village of Frederick, separated by the flooded Illinois river were joined at dawn today in an attempt to exact justice for the killing last night of Sheriff Edward Lashbrook and two deputies.

Stories of the shooting and the subsequent arrest of 28 Greek section hands charged with the killing created the wildest fiction. The maintenance of way workers who three weeks ago when flood water was at its highest were ordered out of Beardstown, were charged with trouble making at Frederick, where they were brought by the railroad this week to repair tracks damaged by flood water.

Sheriff Lashbrook, with three deputies, approached the workers' boarding house last night to arrest some and when the others to be peaceful. A volley rang out as the quartet stepped onto the station platform. Three of the four fell. A posse killed one man outside Frederick this morning. Another was arrested nearby.

DR. WAKEFIELD PRESIDENT OF HEALTH BOARD

The honor of being the first woman to head a health board in any third class city of Pennsylvania was conferred on Dr. Katherine Wakefield at a meeting of the local board in council chambers Friday night. Dr. Wakefield has been a member for two years, and during that time has been vice-president. She succeeds Dr. T. R. Francis, who still retains his position as a member.

Dr. E. A. McCoombs, the newest member of the board, recently elected from District No. 3, was elected vice-president. Harry G. Mason is secretary by virtue of his office as city clerk.

There were two applications for the position of health officer, George Heizel and I. J. Enos. Heizel, who has held the position for a number of years, was re-elected.

The report of the health officer, showing 219 cases of contagious diseases in the city during 1921, was read. The report for the first three months of 1922 denotes considerable improvement for this year. During this period there have been 25 cases reported as follows: diphtheria 11, scarlet fever 6, chicken-pox 5, measles 3, mumps 1 (typhoid fever 1).

The meeting of the board was the first held in more than a year, the previous session having been held on February 4, 1921. Dr. Wakefield, in her new office as head of the board, indicated another session would be held within a few months.

FOUR WEEKS OF STRIKE SHOWS A HALT IN PROGRESS

No More Plants Added to the Idle List; Several Small Mines Resume.

MANY MEETINGS STAGED

But Enthusiasm Noticeable at Beginning Seems to Have Died Out; Organizers Devote Energies to Abusing Mine Operators and Newspapers.

The close of the fourth week of the strike today appears to have definitely marked a halt in its progress toward further reducing coal and coke production activities in the region. During the week there have been no additions to the number of plants made idle through efforts of the organizers. The plants in partial operation have been recruiting their forces slowly from day to day and numerous small coal mining operations have resumed production.

The gains in shipments over the railroads serving the region show that more coke and coal has been moved during the week than since the strike began on April 1. Shipments by the Pennsylvania system alone were 2,436 cars. Of the 170 mines served by this road 65 are reported in operation, a gain of nine during the past week.

In the sections most affected by the strike there is growing anxiety on part of the men as to the time plants will be started up. Among the larger producers there is at present no disposition to do so. The coal and coke markets are rather lifeless just now and there is no particular incentive to resume. A number of buyers have withdrawn from the market altogether and others have reduced their requirements very considerably.

The organizers are still persistent in their efforts to shut down the region completely but evidently have reached the limit of their ability in this direction. Frequent meetings are being held, many of them very largely attended, but there is a noticeable lack of interest on part of the men, the listen to the appeals of the organizers. At least, the enthusiasm observable at the earlier gatherings seems to have worked itself out.

Much of the time occupied by the speakers is devoted to abuse of the newspapers in an effort to induce the men to believe that the strike is gaining instead of waning as the facts set forth by the press from day to day plainly show.

The Star Junction section, where the men made idle by the suspension of five plants of the Washington Coal & Coke Company are understood to be very much in favor of going back to work, is receiving considerable attention from the organizers. A meeting was held earlier in the week and another is scheduled for this afternoon. A meeting will be held in Scalish Hall, West Side, tomorrow afternoon.

Unity and Derry townships, Westmoreland county, have been another center of organization effort during the week, 20 organizers reported to have been at work there. Numerous meetings were held during the week.

Farmer Fiance of Dead Teacher In "Network of Lies"

By Associated Press.

HOOPESTON, April 29.—Information obtained through an all-night grilling of John Wyman, 6, a well-to-do farmer, in connection with the mysterious death of Gertrude Hanna, 25, whose body was found Thursday in the basement of an untenanted parsonage of the First Presbyterian Church, will be placed before the Vermilion grand jury, State's Attorney John H. Lewman announced. During 36 hours of almost constant questioning Wyman insisted he was innocent of murdering the woman but admitted he was the father of her child which would have been born in a few weeks. "Wyman has been trapped in a network of lies," the state's attorney continued, "and we have gained sufficient information to warrant a grand jury investigation of his connection with this baffling case."

Stove Keeps Off Frost But Heat Is Severe on Blossoms

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, April 29. County Superintendent J. S. Carroll enjoys the distinction of having had the first roasted apple of the 1922 crop. And this is how it all came about. Friday night of last week when the low mercury insured a heavy frost, being very fond of apples, several excellent trees of which he has on his lot, he decided to try the plan recommended by the government to ward off the frost by building and keeping up fires in the orchard, and so after supper he appropriated an iron stove from the woodshed, and proceeded to build a fire. As the cold increased he added to the fuel. All night long he kept the orchard fires burning, not leaving his desk until a call to breakfast.

Going out into the orchard after breakfast he found the government's plan was not only very effective against frost, but that it made the fruit immune to future frosts by roasting it and incidentally furnishing the epicure with the daintiest dish of roast apples served in the blossoms.

To his delight, however, he discovered that the blossoms on the side of the trees opposite from the fire were not injured in the least.

The Weather

GOWN CREATOR SHATTERS ANCIENT PARIS TRADITION

Tries to Beat Hard Times by Inviting Press Men to Fashion Show.

That little world of its own in Paris which has to do exclusively with the creation of women's clothing has been thrown into a high state of excitement through the recent "radical" departure of one of its leading members in inviting newspaper men to view his spring and summer dresses.

In doing so the dressmaker smashed a tradition as old as the Paris dressmaking business itself, which has always boasted of the fact that it needed no newspaper to assist it to greatness.

The representatives of the press have been rigorously barred heretofore and many of the big establishments whose names are well known to American women have gone so far as to demand a special passport with a picture from all those who entered their establishments. Those few special fashion writers who have obtained admission were made to believe they had been highly honored.

Jean Patou, a young Frenchman with American ideas, decided recently that his associates were wrong. He therefore arranged a special party, invited all the best-known newspapermen in Paris—foreign and French—and revealed to them the secrets of his art. Anyone was free to carry away a careful description of the gowns displayed.

Patou's move has caused great discussion in the Paris fashion world and there is much speculation as to whether it will force other dressmakers to open their doors to the press. Many well-known houses which have felt the pinch of recent hard times are wondering whether they are wrong.

GERMANY LOST 199 U-BOATS

Paid Dearly for Submarine Activities Against Allies.

Germany paid an enormous price for the submarine warfare she waged during the World war, according to figures from the war archives of the German admiralty, recently made public. Out of a total of 1,014 casualties among naval officers, excluding marines and coast artillery, 518 perished in submarines; 86 more were slain in aircraft battles and only four out of every ten naval officer casualties met death in their element for which they were originally trained.

The exact number of submarines lost during the war, before the fleet surrendered to the allies, was, according to official figures, exactly 199. The commanders of 140 of these vessels perished with their ships, as indicated by the ominous dagger sign before their names in the official lists.

The virtual certainty of death for all engaging in submarine warfare hindered toward the end the activities and enterprise of German submarines and made it increasingly difficult to get crews to man those floating coffins. The Zeppelins made but a little better record, as 23 out of 29 rigid dirigibles were lost during the war, proving veritable death traps for their commanders and the entire crews.

PAINS SO BAD WOULD GO TO BED

Two Women Tell How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Their Suffering

Iron Mountain, Mich. — "I had terrible pains every month and at times had to go to bed on account of them. I saw your advertisement and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with very good results. I can work all day long now at my sick times. You may use the facts as a testimonial and I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends."—Mrs. A. H. GARLAND, 324 E. Brown St., Iron Mountain, Michigan.

Xenia, Ohio. — "Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of my abdomen that I could not be quiet in bed. I suffered for about five years that way and I was not regular either. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I decided to try it. It surely has helped me a lot, as I have no pains now and am regular and feeling fine."—Mrs. MARY DALE, Route 7, Xenia, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women's ailments. It is especially adapted to relieve women. If you suffer as did Mrs. Garland or Mrs. Dale, you should give this well-known medicine a thorough trial.

SATURDAY EVEG, APR. 29, 1922.

NO GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION AT THIS TIME.

The most authentic news from Washington indicates quite clearly that the administration has no present intention, much less plans, for intervening to settle the coal strike. Certain matters having in view a correction of some of the well-known economic ills of the coal situation such as irregularity in operation of mines and what is believed to be overdevelopment, and which are to be deferred until the strike is over, have apparently been seized upon as the basis of the rumors given circulation during the past few days. The hearings before the House Labor Committee on the Bland bill for the creation of a so-called "Coal Investigation Agency," have given the politicians an opportunity to try to make capital out of the situation, but this form of preelection activity has done everything but advance the participants in public favor or strengthen them with their constituencies at home.

On the authority of the White House and Secretary of Commerce Hoover the very definite statement has been made that "at this time, at least, there are no prospects of federal intervention in the strike. The coal situation presents nothing to worry about."

With the large reserve stocks of coal on hands and the non-union fields waiting for more demand from consumers to increase their production, and the fuel consuming industries not having been hampered in their operation, Washington does not feel either the necessity nor the desirability of intervention.

Evidences are not wanting that a trend of sentiment has developed in some of the districts affected by the strike favoring district instead of interstate settlements. Such settlements have already been made in Kentucky and Tennessee and, according to Frank Farrington, state president of the United Mine Workers in Illinois, a similar plan is progressing toward early consummation in that state. Acceptance of this arrangement by the mine workers of other districts is all that is needed to bring the strike to an end. Before it began the operators expressed their entire willingness to affect such settlements but the international officers of the union held out for an interstate agreement which would oblige every district to accept the same wage scale without regard to the different mining conditions peculiar to the several districts.

The points of difference between the miners and the operators being in reality so very slight as to the form of settlement, except as to views as to what shall be the new wage rates in the several strike districts, it appears to both the public and to Washington that there is no occasion, and no public interest would at this time be served, by intervening to compel a settlement.

MAKING "INSIDE" KNOWLEDGE PAY.

The enormous fees some of the former job-holders under the late Democratic Administration have been harvesting ever since severing their connection with the government, have been the subject of much quiet talk in certain circles; but there has been little appearing in print about this form of activity. Evidently, however, some of the clients of these "income tax experts" have been exchanging experiences, for a writer who has an inside view of big financial operations has this to tell in the Boston News Bureau, an exclusively financial publication:

"Directors lift their eyes when they foot a fee of $100,000 to someone who has the 'know' in settling tax controversies for less than $1,000,000 where more than $6,000,000 was claimed. Members of the outgoing Wilson administration have probably coined more money out of knowledge obtained in the public service than any administration that was ever in Washington."

And, if the truth were known, they have not all operated in the big financial centers of the country.

It has been the history of every strike in the coke region and elsewhere that when the leaders resort to persistent abuse of the operators and the newspapers it is a form of admission that the strike has failed. Just now history is repeating itself as it has the habit of doing.

The students of the High School have again demonstrated their ability to give an entertainment of high order that taxes the capacity of the auditorium to hold the throng of interested and admiring patrons.

In extending charity at this time it would be well for the generously inclined to make sure they are not promoting a profession instead of providing for necessities.

The weatherman will see to it that air of the necessary crispness and brightness is provided to make your journey to church tomorrow all that you could wish it to be as a pleasant and healthful activity.

Voters are beginning to take heart that only a few days over two weeks remain for the primary candidates to do their courting.

The figures of the increasing shipments by the railroads from the coke region tell the story of the progress of the strike in terms the public has no difficulty in understanding.

The Way to Stop Crime—Punish Offenders

Kansas City Star.

This is startling information the Detroit commissioner of police brings to the criminologists in session in Chicago. It is so startling that it might not be credited but that Commissioner Inches has by the application of his theories on crime suppression reduced Detroit's crime 58 per cent in one year.

The Detroit official explained to the wondering experts that there is no trick at all about stamping out crime in a city, provided that crime is not protected by the politicians or other influences through which criminals retain or regain their liberty and their liberty of action. Put the criminals in the penitentiary and keep them there, says this remarkable police administrator, and the crime problem is solved.

At first glance this remedy seems too simple to be the success it has proved to be in Detroit. It will seem that way to those unsophisticated citizens who had supposed that, of course, criminals were put in prison and kept there. It is almost a pity to disabuse such minds, but the facts are as the Chicago experts heard them stated. In many cities, but not now in Detroit, known criminals are frequently arrested for the commission of one crime while out on bail in connection with the commission of another. Known criminals are released on writs of habeas corpus, signed by judges who get out of bed in the middle of the night for that purpose. Known criminals are kept from trial by a hundred devices known to the politician with influence in the right quarter. Cases are continued, witnesses are discouraged from testifying or are removed from the court's jurisdiction. Meanwhile the known criminals are at large, pursuing their known trade.

A Chicago judge has declared that murderers walk the streets in that city safe from the law. A police chief of Kansas City has declared that a power has existed there that is stronger than the police. In Chicago such is the fear of these known criminals who walk immune that juries dare not convict upon the most overwhelming evidence. Crime flourishes because the criminals go unpunished, are secure in their liberty and have greater protection than the law itself gives to honest men.

This testimony from a police commissioner will startle, but it also ought to cause cities to reflect a little on the deal they are getting from their politicians and their underworld alliances. Are these forces to be permitted to become stronger than the law and the courts? Are the law and the courts incapable of holding fast the guilty? Is the machinery of the law and the courts to be reversed, so that it grinds criminals out upon the public rather than into prison, as it was intended it should do?

Cities will have to determine these things for themselves. Detroit has said its police and its courts are for the protection of its citizens and not its criminals. There the guilty are held fast by the law. That is the whole secret, says the commissioner. If it's as simple as that, it really does seem that other cities ought to try it, even if the politicians and some eminent legal authorities say it can't be done. There are always interests that say things can't be done, meaning, of course, that they don't want them done.

THE STRANGER.

There's a stranger—Do you know him?—
Waiting for your son, to show him
Things perhaps he shouldn't see;
There's a stranger who may be
Just as clean and good and true,
Just as fond of him as you,
But are you content to stay
Just his father, day by day,
Trusting to some stranger's whim
To be guide and friend to him?

There's a stranger always near
Whispering stories in his ear,
Maybe sharing in his play,
Maybe leading him astray,
Maybe to your own disgrace,
Slipping slyly in your place;
It is possible that he
May a friendly tutor be,
But can you be sure at night
He will teach him what is right?

You are busy through the day
And you have no time to play,
But the strangers, good or bad,
Seem to find each little lad,
Seem to have the time to spend,
Posing as your youngster's friend;
Always there is one or more
Waiting just around your door
For your boy to come and play,
When you bid him go away.

Can you trust your son to him,
To some stranger's passing whim?
Are you sure that he will fare
As he would if you were there?
He is your boy. Will a stranger
Be so quick to fly from danger?
Will he learn what's good to do
As he would were he with you?
Can you look him in the face
While some stranger fills your place?

BOXING WILL TEACH CONTROL OF TEMPER

Should Be Made Compulsory in Schools, Says Rice.

Columbia Coach Enumerates Advantages of Sport and Says It Promotes Fearlessness and Capacity for Self Defense

Boxing is the sport most advantageous in teaching control of temper ordination of mind and muscle fearlessness courtesy and poise Boxing is one of the greatest games in the world to teach manliness and control of temper

It is governed by rules which foster the principle of give and take a principle which certainly every young American should know if he is to be self reliant Boxing in my opinion, should be made compulsory in our schools writes Jim Rice coach of Columbia crew in the Chicago Post

Good boxers get out of their temper This is essential be sure the man of a boxer loses his temper his opponent is sure to slip something over Even when hurt a boxer keeps his temper And he must unless he wishes to take the count

Boxing cultivates poise for without poise no fight can be won Boxing promotes fearlessness and gives a man that capacity for self direction which in turn gives rise to calm confidence that means so much in every walk of life

To those who think that boxing is a tough game let me say that rowing is the toughest game in the world In boxing the other fellow punishes you, but in rowing you have got to punish yourself I have been rowing all my life and have been coaching oarsmen for thirty years I have also done much boxing I can appreciate the difference

Every American should know how to use his hands both to protect himself and to protect others Good boxers make good citizens in time of peace and good soldiers in time of war

Worsted and Wool for Clothing

By Wright Metzler Co

How many persons are engaged in textile manufacturing can explain the difference between worsted and wool Very few know there is a difference they use the one word as a synonym of the other and vice versa

Many cloths made from soft dull loo twisted yarn of short un combed stapled wool are generally called woolens Cloths made from carefully combed long more or less lustrous wool made into closely twisted yarn are called worsted

The difference between woolens and worsteds was originally quite marked for the short serrated wools were used for the former and the longer brighter varieties for the worsteds but modern machinery now combs the shortest staple wool hence the difference is principally in the yarn preparation

The yarns used for worsteds are generally carded and combed until they lie parallel and smooth in woolen materials after they are felted The lines of weaving are more or less obliterated while the true worsted cloth shows its pattern distinctly from a firmly woven surface which reflects the light

Since both fabrics enter into the clothing industry it behooves the careful clothier to acquaint himself with these facts that he may be able to classify the different fabrics with regard to variety as well as quality

WRITING ALMOST A LOST ART

Typewriter Has Practically Put the Pen Out of Business, With Some Unfortunate Results.

Who remembers the old days when men of commerce and industry wrote a "good business hand"—when handwriting was one of the accomplishments and letters written in ink could be read with small effort? asks the Nation's Business. Handwriting has gone out of style because it gave way to something infinitely better. It was the old story. Hand work could not compete with machine work—the pen could not compete with the typewriter.

But we view with sorrow the fact that the decline and fall of hand writing has also meant the decline and fall of the business signature. You pick up the ordinary business letter these days, and while the body of the communication stands forth in clean-cut typography you are lucky if you can make out the signature.

Unless you know who wrote it, the name may be anything from "Hatz" to "Jones." Some of them appear to be perfect, they are made up of regular, sharp saw teeth, but when you try to decode them you can't tell the "n's" from the "u's" or the "l's" from the "i's." Others confuse and dazzle you with scrolls and flourishes. And still another type is just plain awful.

Plainly something should be done about it. Maybe congress could be induced to pass a law making it compulsory for every letter to have the name of the signer typewritten in the near neighborhood of the signature.

BUT HE GOT DATES MIXED

And So a Wily, Unscrupulous Russian Bachelor Was Forced to "Kill Off" His Family.

Necessity has sharpened the wits of the Russians and they discover most ingenious devices to profit at the expense of the government.

A shrewd physician in Petrograd, who was a bachelor with a hearty appetite and a small income, induced the president of the house committee where he resided to give him a certificate saying he was married. In this way he procured a double ration.

Soon his imaginary wife fell ill and he got a milk card on the strength of it. Later a baby came to bless this fictitious union and he was entitled to additional delicacies as a result. Unfortunately he got his dates mixed up and announced the arrival of three children inside of six months.

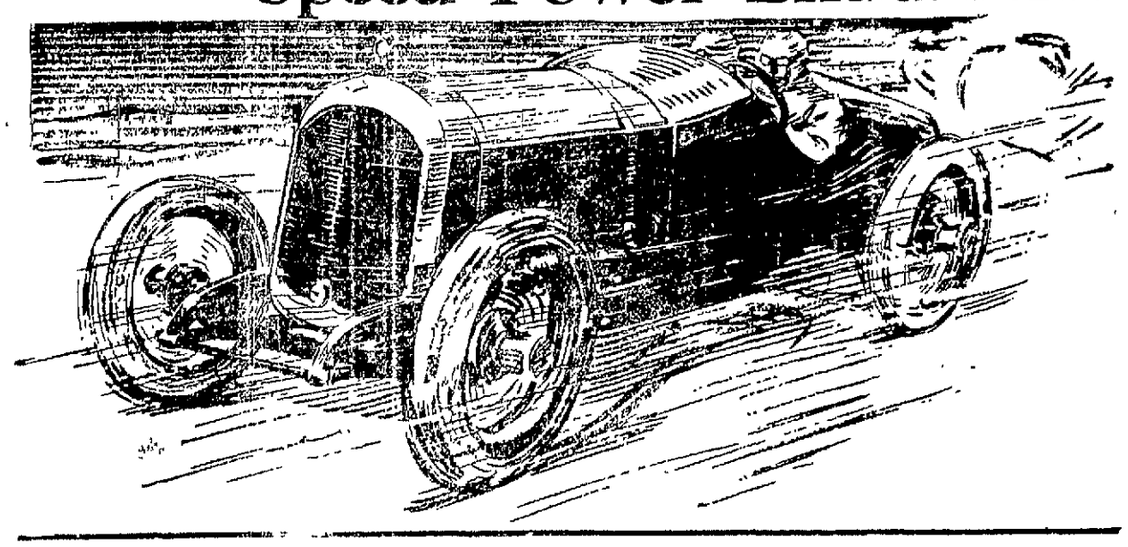
An investigation was started upon which an epidemic broke out in his family, which carried away inside of two days, his wife, two daughters and little boy.

It was a dreadful massacre on paper. But it saved the physician who got off undetected.—J. Kessel in Le Figaro, Paris.

Mirror in Man's Hat.

A man can manage somehow to get along without a powder rag but there are occasions when he does need a mirror and a comb for emergency use. To meet this demand, Gustav Peszcznack, of Trenton, N. J., has contrived a holder for both articles which may be conveniently fastened inside of a hat. It is sewn in, being made of cloth, a rectangular piece of which is attached to the inside of the hat by snap fasteners at the corners. This makes the back of the holder, the front is provided by a second piece of like size secured to the first one by stitching. The two thus form a pocket. A horizontal line of stitching divides the pocket into two compartments, an upper one to receive the mirror and a lower one to hold the comb. One end of the pocket is left open to permit insertion of comb and glass. A slidable catch engaging the end tooth of the comb retains it in place, and the safety of the mirror is obtained by a flap which snap fastens over it.

New Proof of Paige Speed Power Endurance



Paige 6-66 Daytona Model Travels 10 Miles at Rate of 93.2 Miles Per Hour

The Paige 6-66 Daytona Model is the holder of all world's stock chassis speedway records from 5 to 100 miles. But now this record-breaking car has further demonstrated its ability.

Piloted by Earl Cooper, the Paige, in an unofficial exhibition run against time, covered 10 miles in 6 minutes and 26 1/5 seconds at the San Carlos, California track, on Sunday April 16th. It thus travelled at the terrific speed of 93 1/5 miles per hour for the ten miles.

The official record for the distance, held by this same stock chassis is 6:31:48, or 91 9/10 miles per hour. It was made at the Uniontown Speedway a year ago.

Thus, once again, the Paige in the most spectacular manner has demonstrated its power and endurance.

The Paige 6-66 is the Master of the Highway.

Tools to Make Gardening Easy

A good workman needs good tools, whether he is a gardener or a boilermaker. The tools absolutely needed in a garden are a hoe, a rake and a spade. The fingers may supply the need for others, but a good gardener will supply himself plentifully. Two shapes of hoe are really needed, one with a heart shaped blade for making rows, and another with the usual flat blade for cutting off weeds just below the surface of the soil. There are many new wrinkles in hoes, all having their special uses. One of the most convenient has rake teeth on one side and a flat blade on the other, so that weeds may be cut off or the soil stirred as need be. This is all right, and especially adapted to women gardeners.

Three cultivator teeth are now used instead of the usual single hoe blade and these in large and small size. They are particularly useful in working long rows. A spading fork for working light soils and digging vegetables and the spade for heavier soils or for cutting off roots are also needed in the tool house.

An iron-tooth garden rake and a looped tooth rake for raking grass are usually included. There are now untangled rakes designed to decapitate dandelions and prevent their seedings which have become very popular with many gardeners. They, however, are special purpose tools and not at all essential.

Of hand tools a trowel is absolutely needed. A dibble, a pointed iron for making holes into which to drop bulbs or seedlings is a convenience. Hand cultivators and weeders of various types also speed up and even up the work a three-sided weeder, hairpinned on all edges, being the most convenient instrument to destroy weeds of younger growth. The asparagus cutter, a long-bladed tool with a notched end is one of the finest weeding implements for cutting tap-rooted weeds below the surface or severing tough grass roots.

A wheel hoe with various accessories and tools will do everything in the way of cultivation and spare many a lame back. If the garden is only a quarter of an acre in extent it will be a great economy to get a wheel hoe. Cultivator teeth, hoe blades, rake teeth and a plowshare make up the collection that goes with the ordinary wheel hoe.

MODERN BARN TO HOUSE 50 COWS

One-Story Building Designed for Successful Dairy Man.

COMFORT MEANS EFFICIENCY

Everything Necessary to the Health and Productiveness of the Cows Is Provided in This Design for Stable.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

During the slump in the prices farmers are receiving for their crops, the value of a herd of dairy cows has been more and more apparent. Whether the milk is sold directly to the consumer, or to the creamery, cash flows in daily or weekly, and although the price of milk and cream is somewhat lower than it was two years ago, there still is a nice profit for the dairyman.

There is no profit, however, in scrub cows. Pure-breds or grades are the only animals which pay to feed and care for, as they eat little more than scrubs and take no more care than their less productive sisters. While there now is only a little more than 3 per cent of the dairy cows in the United States that are pure-breds, farmers are learning their value and are rapidly replacing scrub cows with the high producing animals.

The average annual milk production of scrub cows is only about 3,000 pounds, while it is a poor pure-bred that does not give three times as much milk. High-producing cows eat more than the low producers, but the difference in cost, especially at the present prices of feed is more than offset.

Any cow to produce her greatest possible quantity of milk must be well housed. Animals, in common with humans, must eat to keep up the body heat in winter. If the cow is cold, a larger part of her food goes to supply heat than when she is warm; she must have fresh air, but must not be in a draft; she must have plenty of water that is not ice cold. And greatest of all, she must be housed in a building where she will be undisturbed and comfortable, for a cow is a nervous animal, easily excited, and when excited does not give the maximum quantity of milk.

Successful dairymen know these facts and build the stables and barns that shelter the animal with them in mind. Planning a dairy stable has been brought to a pretty exact science, farm building architects having made a close study of the requirements that go to make such a building a profitable investment.

It is customary, especially on farms where not a great number of dairy cows are kept, to build the dairy stable under the barn, or in the first floor. However, where a large number of cows are maintained special stables, such as is shown in the accompanying illustration, are used. This one-story, especially designed dairy stable is planned for a herd of 50 cows. The building is equipped with a ventilation system that keeps the air fresh, the walls of the building dry and takes out the foul air that the animals exhale.

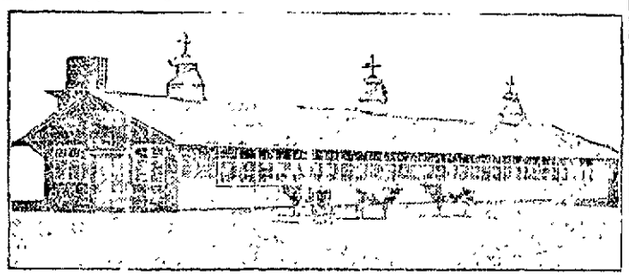
This building is of frame construction, set on a concrete foundation and has a concrete floor. The floor plan shows that the two rows of stalls are arranged so that the cows face a feeding alley through the center of the building. The two rows are each divided into two sections for convenience in doing the work. Thus there are two sections of stalls that care for 13 cows each and two sections for 12 cows each.

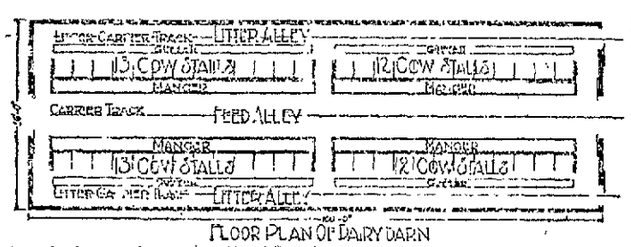
The building is 36 feet wide and 100 feet long. The stalls, divided by steel stall partitions, face a concrete manger that has no dividing partitions, so that it may be flushed out with a hose when desired. At each stall head there is an individual drinking cup, where there always is fresh water for the cow. In the sides of the building are fresh air intake flues, while foul air flues carry the foul air to the suction ventilators on the roof.

The interior arrangement of this dairy stable, and the equipment specified on the floor plan, make this a comfortable and healthful home for the dairy herd. At the same time the arrangement is such that the owner may care for the animals with the least amount of effort. An overhead carrier track extends over the feeding alley and over the litter alleys in the rear of the stalls, making it a simple matter to carry the feed to the mangers and to remove the litter. The continuous windows admit sunlight to the litter alley, aiding in keeping the barn free from disease germs.

Such a dairy stable as this is not expensive to build, but it will be found a profitable investment in northern states when the weather is cold and stormy. The cows will be kept healthy and productive and the work of caring for the animals can be done easily and at less cost for labor.

While no provision is made in this stable for the storage of roughage that the animals need, adjoining it one or two silos should be erected. These silos will hold all the ensilage a herd this size needs during the months the animals are continually in the barn. A hay storage shed nearby will protect the roughage from the weather.





FLOOR PLAN OF DAIRY BARN

Poor Jack Spratt.

Jack Spratt can eat no fat,
His wife can eat no lean;
They both have heard of balanced meals
But don't know what they mean.

NUMERATION IN OLD TIMES

Both Greek and Latin Writers Were Careless About the Value of High Numerals.

In ancient times there was no peculiar carefulness about the value of high numerals. The later Latin classical writers differentiated more precisely, though even among them we find traces of the same looseness which the Greek authors showed, for instance, in the word "myriad," which meant either ten thousand, or a great multitude. So the Latin word mille stood for "a thousand" or "a large number," the sense being gathered sometimes by the case employed in the governed word. However, the letter M was commonly employed to represent 1,000 in what is known now as the Roman numeration. MM meant thousands loosely, or two thousand if intended to be used precisely. A dash over the M changed its value from a thousand to "a million" or probably to "an exceedingly high number." Two M's with a dash over both, might read simply "millions and millions" if orderlerally employed or if with precision simply two millions.

Sniffing Out.

Bill—I make it a rule to pay as I go.

Dill—In these days you are mighty lucky if you don't have to pay coming and going.—Cartoons Magazine.

The Coquette.

He—Don't you ever get tired of being made love to?

She—I might if it were always by the same man.

ceed in carrying out Joe's plans. And I believe you will. And I believe you will find a way to cross The Muskeg. I see now that I must let you go, though I can't bear to. Will. But now I must say something. You know my father—" Doesn't altogether approve of me as a son-in-law, to put it mildly," answered Wilton. "I can't make out the reason for his dislike of me. The first time I came here we struck up a friendship that looked as if it would be good for all time. Do you know what the trouble is, Molly?"

I'm afraid Tom Bowyer has been influencing him against you. He has a strong power over father. He helped him in some way when he first came to this country."

"Then that's another score against my friend Bowyer," said Wilton.

But I was going to say—you see my father's mind has given way to some extent since his stroke and—I don't know. Will dear, but I'm almost afraid he is never going to be the same man again. It started even before his attack—this feeling against you and his moroseness. It began when Tom Bowyer was here last autumn. I'm afraid Bowyer slandered you to father. And I think it was my father's brooding over that really caused his illness. So we'll just have to be patient. And I'm going to ask you, for the present not to say anything about this to him."

Wilton promised, though with reluctance. He did not like the concealment. His mind, simple and direct, worked in straightforward ways. However, he had been too hard hit over Joe's death to make room for a new trouble. And he could not have refused Molly.

CHAPTER IV

"In the King's Name!"

But he worried over the situation all night, and in the morning Molly saw with alarm that he was in a feverish condition. He should never have left his bed, and the journey seemed impossible.

"I've got to go, Molly," was all Wilton could say.

"Then," she said with sudden decision, "I shall go with you. You can't travel alone. Your men may be faithful enough, but it is my right to go. And you'll never get to the meeting without some one to take care of you on the way. That's my condition. Promise me—or else I'll lock the store door, Will, and I've got a padlock that even you couldn't force."

Molly seemed to be animated by a resolution as feverish as his own. Jules Halfhead had not fulfilled his intention of absenting himself probably on account of the storm, which had made the security of the store seem preferable to life in the forests. He was faithful to the factor, and had never deserted him in need. He could take care of him during the four or five days of her absence.

Wilton was forced to yield.

"But you must make sure that Jules will stay," he said.

"He'll understand. He'll stay," answered the girl. "He's never run away when I was gone to Moose Lake or Winnipeg."

Molly went up to the factor's room with the faint hope of reaching some understanding—of plumbing her father's feeling against Wilton and overcoming it.

"Mr. Carruthers is getting ready to go," she said. "He is very ill. He is too weak to travel alone, but he must take Joe Bostock's body back to Clayton."

"Oh, aye!" said the factor, sneering.

"He needs care and attention during the journey. So I am going with him."

The factor sat up in bed, transfixing her with a look of fury. "You, lass—you will go with Wilton Carruthers to Clayton!" he cried. "Ye winna come hame, then! Mark me now, I've done with you for aye. Molly, lass, ye winna go!" he pleaded, with a sudden change of tone. "Think of your good name in Clayton! I havena reared ye to have ye desert me in my old age and sickness, Molly."

She turned quickly away to keep her tears from falling. "Jules can take care of you for a few days, father," she said. "It's not as if you were helpless. And his life is at stake."

"And mebbe he'll die if you don't stay with him when ye get to Clayton, eh, lass?" rasped out the factor in withering scorn.

That scorn nerved her; to his weakness she had almost yielded. She went down and dressed herself for the journey. She helped Wilton on with a mackinaw, and put a caribou robe in the sleigh. Then while the men were harnessing the dogs struck by a sudden thought, she stooped and began to examine the tracks of the snowshoes about the edge of the portage. They ran confusedly in all directions for the marks had been made by seven different pairs—those of Bowyer and Chambers and their Indian, those of Wilton and his two half-breeds, those of the deaf-mute.

Of these Wilton's were blurred and almost indistinguishable, made by his dragging feet as she pulled him up from the swamp. But even had the vague purpose in Molly's mind been clear to her there would have been no need to examine those. The rest were all similar in one respect—none had a broken string.

Wilton and Molly had arranged that he was to travel in the sleigh, to which a second had been attached, bearing Joe's body in a roughly made coffin constructed by the men. The dogs were harnessed and they started.

It was a little more than fifty miles to Clayton. Traveling along the cleared road the distance could be covered easily in two days. The dogs ran well, the weather was clear and fine and Wilton felt well enough to walk a good deal. Each dinner was almost like a picnic. By evening the railhead had come into sight in the distance, the empty camp, the long sheds with the miscellany of supplies, the locomotive shops and the great ballast pits beside the line.

As the dogs climbed the last hill there came yelping from the distant way behind them. Looking back they perceived a sled approaching. Two men walked beside it and the dogs sighting Wilton's, yelped in challenge which was taken up in an outburst of answering growls.

The sled drew in toward them and the men resolved themselves into a sergeant and a constable of the mounted police. Wilton had stopped his dogs, but the newcomers did not halt and went on with curt greetings toward the cache.

A little surprised at their abruptness Wilton let the sled proceed, his sleigh as the dogs were eager for their meal he sent Napoleon ahead with them and followed more leisurely with Molly. They arrived at the cache a few minutes after the half-breeds to find the two policemen waiting for them while the two men were unharnessing the dogs. Anderson, the old Swedish undertaker was standing beside Joe's coffin with a stunned look on his face. The policemen were not of prepossessing appearance. The elder man, the sergeant was about forty years of age. He had fair hair, drooping, mustache, a slight case in one eye and an expression of sullen insolence. His companion a short stocky young fellow looked hardly less surly and evidently ill at ease.

Evening, Mr. Carruthers," said the sergeant frankly. "I'm sergeant Peters and this is Constable Morris. That's Joe Bostock's body you're bringing in, I guess."

Wilton was staggered. "Yes, it's Joe," he said gulping. "How did you get the news?"

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

THE PICTURE OF THE CENTURY the Dempsey-Carpentier bout will be the attraction Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at this theatre. Vitagraph's Al Jolson gives an impromptu exhibition of his mirth-compelling ability as a comedian which done since set the world a laughing. You see David Belasco, the dean of dramatic and playwright entertaining creative of great stage stars. You see Irvin Cobb in action writing his latest story of the battle which was read around the world next day. Just to sit hour after hour and watch this great colossal drama unwind itself for the moment entirely forgetting what had really called the crowd together was worth the price of many admissions. Through all there is heart balm plenty. And finally tumultuous cheers for the victor and the vanquished, deafening salvos of applause for the conqueror in the supreme moment of his triumph and when he and his manager and comedy entries his way to his corner. Nearly a hundred thousand people from all parts of the world saw the fight at Jersey City. Probably there isn't a town of any importance in New York State but what had its representative at the ringside.

THE SOISSON.

"THE PRODIGAL JUDGE" the feature picture today is a play of queer characters and double oddities. The story is based upon Vaughn Kester's famous novel of the same name and every effort has been made to retain the thought of the story so to present upon the screen a living picture of the novel which has so long been uppermost in the hearts of the readers. Many scenes were filmed right in the Ozarks of the Southwest and the entire cabin and the boat was transported to the Vitagraph studio where certain close-ups were made.

THE PARAMOUNT.

CAMERON OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED the thrilling picture today from start to finish comes a stirring story. It was supposed to happen in the vast regions of the great Canadian Northwest where the laws are few and the people are the sort of the kind called by those who strive to keep the peace "hell-roaring." It is a story of the days when only the strong survive and where only the fearless can live. It is a story of a man who fought with a law behind his back and a gun in his hand. Being now a member of the Royal Mounted Police, evolution of human devil and murderer. It is a picturization of a heroic and thrilling type of the bravest, truest, finest soldier-servant—the full-blooded Canadian of the Royal Mounted.

THE ORPHEUM.

The feature of the vaudeville program today is a mountebank actor and his trained dog who are doing produce the funniest comedy sketch in the vaudeville world. The dog in the sketch is a wonder. The way in which the animal carries out the instructions of his master is a marvel. The dog is a wonderful mountebank and he performs with the skill of a professional. Other acts on the bill are: Mowatt Arden Trio, Jolly Girls, Nat Nazarro and Red Le Roy, Lew Cooper, Monday and Tuesday Mary Miles Minter will be seen in "Hills."

More Merchant Furnaces Bank Because They Cannot Get Enough Contract Coke

Prefer to Lose Production Rather Than Pay More Than $3.50.

SPOT IS QUOTED AT $6.00

Demand for Foundry Is Increasing as Price for Spot Advances to $6.50; Coal Prices Soften as Large Consumers Withdraw From the Market.

Special to The Weekly Courier

PITTSBURG April 29 A regular tonnage of furnace coke running into four figures has just been sold at the once very familiar figure of $6.00 and this may be quoted as the market at the moment although conditions are such that the next sales may be at quite different figures either higher or lower

The merchant furnaces that are receiving less than their regular contract shipments of coke and have been forced to bank maintain the same attitude as formerly so far as can be ascertained, that they will not pay more than $3.50, or about $3.50 for coke, preferring to lose production for as they say, their sales against which they now owe iron, were at less than cost of production even figuring coke at only $3.00 The sale reported above was made to a steel works interest, not a merchant furnace interest

Demand for foundry coke which was better light in the last two weeks of the strike has been increasing Foundries quite generally laid in stocks of coke but some apparently did not While a merchant furnace has to be particular about the price it pays for coke the case is different with a foundry as the cost of coke is a relatively small item in the production cost of the finished castings Foundries in actual need of coke have not hesitated to pay market prices which have been advancing continuously occasionally by 25 or 50 cents overnight The latest sales have been at $6.50 which is plainly the market at the moment Thus there has been an advance of about $1.00 a ton in the past week The Courier report a week ago giving the range of transactions just made as being from $5.25 to $5.75 which was an advance of $1.00 over the market prevailing quite steadily in March There is of course no contract market at all and such market as there is may be quoted as follows but only for the moment

Spot furnace	$6.00
Spot foundry	$6.50

The market for Connellsville coal in Pittsburg has been rather a wild one in the past week Some sellers kept advancing their asking prices until they reached levels that did not interest consumers at all but prices decided by actual transactions rose until last Thursday or Friday Then the market struck the circumstance of some large consumers withdrawing partly or wholly from the market and prices have softened a trifle since then Connellsville steam coal seems quotable at the moment at $2.50 to $2.75, with by-product at $2.85 to $3.00 There is no Westmoreland coal offered From the regular Pittsburg district there is no coal being mined except from stripping operations on the Pan Handle, the strip coal selling for steam purposes at $3.00 but there is only a very limited supply with buyers waiting to purchase prompt lots

The buying of coal since April 1 has been chiefly by large consumers, who wished to fortify their position further, having stocks which they wished to preserve as long as possible The small consumers who did not stock to any extent have not yet been heard from, but small lot buying is likely to grow more in evidence.

There has been no regular pig iron market in the past two weeks as the merchant furnaces have practically all withdrawn from the market until conditions are more clearly defined The furnaces owe iron to their customers at less than cost of production and are unable to make deliveries in full not a few being banked In the circumstances the furnaces have not wished to sell at any price but they did wish to see higher prices developed, of which they could take advantage later when they are again able to make iron There have been odd lot sales of foundry iron at higher and higher prices, chiefly because furnacemen did not wish to refuse flatly to sell iron to old customers There has been some insistent inquiry for basic pig iron, with sellers almost impossible to find Finally one seller was found, and stood to be a steel interest and a tonnage of basic iron running into four figures changed hands at $21 which is $6 above the last price done in a free and open market, though there have been two or three sales at intermediate prices The trade looks upon this sale of basic at $21 as setting the minimum limit to be reached as furnaces would not sell Bessemer of foundry at less than basic but the prices they have been commanding have been less than basic Prices in this line market will be influenced by the moment it seems to be quoted as follows

Bessemer	$24 00
Basic	$21 00
Foundry	$20 00

These prices are f o b Valley furnace, freight to Pittsburg being $1.96 but it does not follow that actual sellers can be found

A Thought For Today

Quality today is of just as much concern as price. For in quality lies the only economy that counts.

And this is a store where Quality is held paramount.

Which means that whatever you purchase here will give you more service, year for year and dollar for dollar, than an inferior article purchased only for its price.

Quality may cost you a few cents more in the beginning—but it will serve you a few years more in the end.

Demand it in everything you buy!
